Use the library

Whether you are looking for a book or for a place to stop and study, you need to make a reservation via Affluences, a free app you can download from Google Play or App Store.

Collections & resources

The libraries' collections focus on engineering as well as management, materials science, and technology. In addition to print materials, there is an increasing number of online resources such as eBooks, journals and databases. Don't forget to set up your proxy connection: this will allow you to access online resources even when you are off-campus!

Borrowing

The number of items you can borrow at a time changes depending on whether you are a student (up to 15 items) or academic staff (up to 20 items).

Materials are generally loaned for 30 days at a time, but some of them (like textbooks and journals) can only be borrowed for a shorter period of time. Specific loan period details are noted with the item listing in GalileoDiscovery.

GalileoDiscovery is the library catalog: you can use it to browse all resources and tools owned by every library within the University Library System! If you log in, you will also be able to renew loans and request books. Here's the link:

WiFi & more

You can access the internet for free via the Eduroam WiFi service. If you sign up to unipd.albamyprnt.it you will be able to use the library print stations.

Interlibrary Loan & Document Delivery Service

What if you can't find the materials you need? You can request articles or book chapters via the Document Delivery Service (which is usually free of charge). If you are looking for a book, you can submit an Interlibrary Loan request (you will be charged a fee).
